Boo!

After summer comes a time when the weather starts to cool.
During this time, kids all over begin school.
Trees lose their leaves to the hardening ground.
People walk on them, making crinkly sounds.
Leaves turn scarlet, marmalade and canary.
Children carve their pumpkins to make them look scary.
The smell of fresh baking cookies with sugar and spice,
Rises in the air, creating an aroma that smells quite nice.
Kids dress up in their spooky costumes.
Kids are transformed into ghosts, zombies and bats.
Adults dress up simply, wearing crazy hats.
Halloween brings candy and sweets.
Kids go together to trick-or-treat.
They come home with candy galore,
Eating Reese's Pieces, lollipops, Kit Kats and more.
Soon after Autumn, the cold starts to creep in,
Then, in a year, comes Autumn again.

Fall Activities

I see the ruby and burnt orange colored leaves.
I see the squirrel that weaves.
The squirrel searches for scraps.
I smell the hot chocolate roasting,
I smell the fluffy marshmallows toasting,
I taste the delicious pumpkin pie,
I taste the homemade chocolate cake,
It tastes so delicious it seems fake.
The sound of leaves crunching on the ground,
I hear the chirps of crickets that won't be found,
I feel the soft, chilling breeze hit my shoulder,
Knowing that soon it will be much cooler.

The Power of a Dream

Have you
Ever tried to measure
The power of a dream?
Ever sit and wonder
Where water becomes a stream?
In ways there is no difference
From nothing it begins
The pieces come together
And it ebbs and flows and spins
In time it becomes power
No force may stop its flow
None may know its beginning
But all may see it grow
A tiny drop of water
Or a simple little thought
Can change the world we live in
For the betterment of us.

Turner Rosenman

The Power of the Hand

NEVER Underestimate
The power
Of the hand
Working hard
Until it cramps
Sometimes writing
And sometimes typing
Click. Click. Click
Your essay as long as it can possibly be
But when you're done
You feel relieved
With your powerful hand
A paper-cut scars
But you shake it off and keep going
The powerful hand strives again
And you acknowledge the power of the hand.

The Little Girl in the Rain

Giavanna Regina-Wright

It FALLS
It drops
The quietness of the light rain falling.
It pitters-patters on my skin
And runs away from me.
It runs a lovely stream,
And nicely dries away,
To be Somewhere beyond
the rainbow,
Still vibrant as a
rainbow,
So beautiful it wows.

Blue Bird

I sit at the park in a peaceful place.
The trees are swaying with wondrous grace.
I see a blue bird perched up high,
where the air is crisp, tender, and dry.
What beautiful wings it has, oh my!
When it finally soars up in the sky,
it falls down to the ground with a deep, sad cry.

I run over to where it lies.
Surprised to find it has not yet died.
As I brush its wing, it looks quite satisfied.
But soon enough it hops away without saying bye.
It was a very beautiful bird, you know,
I hope one day that bird can fly.
Maybe one day it will return to say a proper goodbye.

Land & Ocean

Without land there is no ocean.

If there is no land where would you rest?

Where would you grow food?

Where would you sleep?

Without the ocean there is no land.

Where would you get water?

Where would you find fish?

If there is no land where is the ocean?

If there is no ocean where is the land?

Where would you find the other,

When they are better together? Peyton Phelan

Unconditional Laughs

Always Better Together

Friends help each other when needed,

Go to each other when help is wanted

Love each other 24/7.

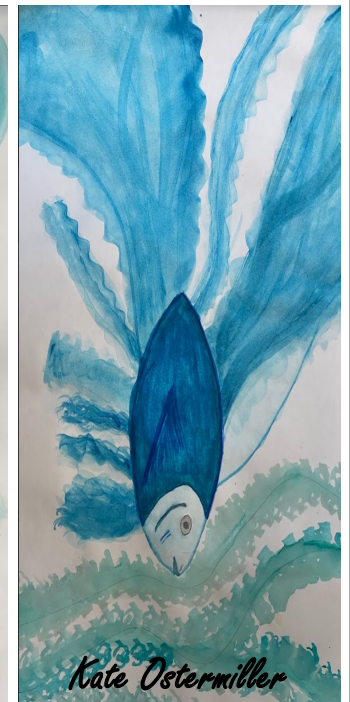

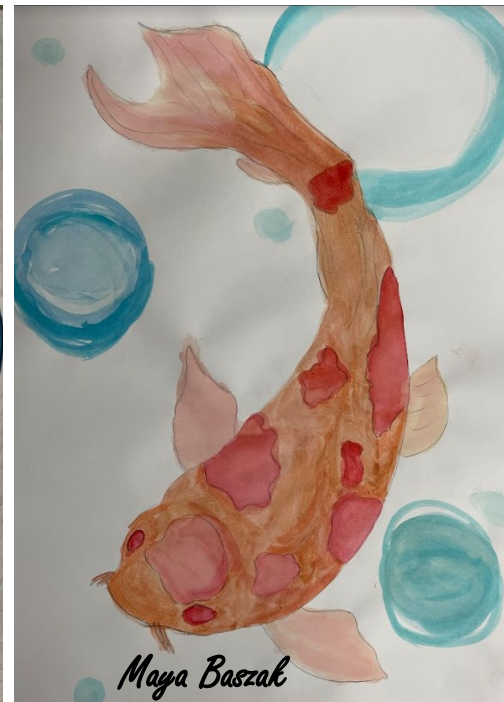

Always care for each other,

Have fun when together,

Not stressed and feel the happiest when together.

Help when in the wrong situation.

And have unconditional laughs together. Giavanna Regina-Wright
